Collaborative Problem-Solving I

Welcome ... in the most recent videos we've looked at problem-solving, some best practices and some key barriers to solving problems.

By now I'm sure you're starting to see that problem solving can be somewhat complex and ever-present.

As Karl Popper, one of the most influential 20th century philosophers of science, once eloquently put it, "All life is problem solving."

As this relates to business, what are companies to do to solve an ever-flowing stream of problems?
